Abstract of the Disclosure

Obtaining the metadata of a data source includes the use of a data repository having an entity structure which defines the metadata characteristics of a generic model data source, and the analysis of the source data in response to these data repository entities.

53